Ramsey: Abductor is a 'thug,' 'vicious predator'

Germantown. Carlesha Freeland-Gaither has been found safe and her abductor will be federally charged.

Carlesha Freeland-Gaither, the 22-year-old Germantown woman who was abducted on Sunday night, has been found safe in Jessup, Maryland, Philadelphia Police Commissioner Charles H. Ramsey said Wednesday night.

"I just want to thank everybody," said Freeland-Gaither's mother Keisha Gaither. "Thank you so much for having us in your prayers. I'm taking my baby home."

The suspect in custody is 37-year-old Delven Barnes. He's presently being held on a warrant based out of Virginia for attempted capital murder, officials said. He will be charged with federal crimes for the abduction in Philadelphia.

Visit Metro.us for more details about the investigation.

A Baltimore task force made up of U.S. Marshals, ATV officers and the FBI, found a car earlier today that matched the car used during Sunday's abduction identified through surveillance video. After surveilling the vehicle, said Ed Hanko, special agent for the Philadelphia divison of the FBI, Barnes exited the vehicle where he was then apprehended. Freeland-Gaither was in the car and rescued.

"She's in good shape," Hanko said, adding that she has some minor injuries. "She was taken to the hospital. She is talking to police."

Freeland-Gaither's mother will be reunited with her daughter soon, however, the two have spoken on the phone. Ramsey said it does not appear that Freeland-Gaither knew her abductor.

"He's a thug," Ramsey said. "This is what he does. There's nothing that makes sense. He's a vicious predator and hopefully he'll be in jail for the rest of his life."

Chaka Fattah associate pleads guilty

Thomas Lindenfeld, 59, a political consultant who worked with Congressman Chaka Fattah on his 2007 mayoral campaign, pleaded guilty Wednesday to wire fraud.

Lindenfeld is reportedly implicated with arranging an illegal $1 million contribution for Fattah's 2007 mayoral campaign.

Reports say Fattah and his associates are suspected of illegally using federal funds to repay the contribution.

Fattah's former chief of staff Gregory Naylor pleaded guilty to "federal program theft" in August. METRO

Philly. Voter turnout at about 36 percent

Preliminary voting numbers indicate that about 36.5 percent of Philadelphia's registered voters participated in Election Day Tuesday, according to the City Commissioners office.

That number is based on almost 98 percent of voting machines and does not include provisional or absentee ballots.

For Philadelphia voters, preliminary counts indicate that Tom Wolf won the governor's race with 326,026 votes, while Gov. Tom Corbett only received 44,371 votes — 88 to 12 percent.

There are 1,032,320 registered voters in Philadelphia. SAM NEWHOUSE

Bikers. Nutter starts bike board, coalition thinks down the road

Adding more bike lanes, especially in more narrow areas, is the Bicycle Coalition of Greater Philadelphia's first request to the next mayor of Philadelphia.

Sarah Clark Stuart, the coalition's deputy director, said the morning of Tuesday's midterm election that her group is already starting to prepare its pitch when the city's next mayor is elected in 2015.

"The city," she said, "needs to double the paving budget in order to pave 130 miles of street a year. The city the past two years has only been able to pave less than 25 a year."

And as roads are repaved, she said, it's an opportunity to lay out more bike lanes.

Nutter signed an executive order Wednesday establishing a bicycle advocacy board. The board will advise his office on ways of "promoting and protecting recreational and professional cycling," according to a statement.

Alex Doty, executive director of the coalition, said Nutter has been helpful, but "There are certain things we can be building on that Nutter's been successful with," he said. TOMMY ROWAN

Dems, Republicans sue Corbett for $72 million

As Gov. Tom Corbett lost the election on Tuesday, leaders of both the state Democratic and Republican parties filed a lawsuit against him claiming that he illegally vetoed $72 million in line-item spending from the state's 2014-15 budget this summer, reports say.

The leaders claim that Corbett did not provide sufficient notice in advance of the vetoes and could not legally veto items from the fiscal code bill that accompanied the state budget.

The lawsuit was filed against Corbett but could continue against Tom Wolf, who will officially take office as governor of Pennsylvania on Jan. 20, 2015. METRO

Man faces charges after attacking two dogs with a brick

North Philly. A man is charged with animal cruelty for beating two dogs.

Willie Enoch, 56, who has a long criminal record, had two counts of first-degree misdemeanor animal cruelty filed against him this week for attacking his neighbor's dogs, the Pennsylvania SPCA announced Wednesday.

Snowball and Brian were found by their owner bleeding outside her home on the 3700 block of North 19th Street on August 27.

Police brought the dogs to the PSPCA Shelter Hospital. PSPCA Humane Law Enforcement investigated, found the dogs had been victims of blunt-force trauma and issued a warrant for Enoch's arrest.

Enoch was arrested by Philadelphia police for an unrelated incident on Oct. 10 in which he is charged with aggravated assault, court records show.

The Philadelphia Zoo and 6ABC announced Wednesday that a new "Zoo Balloon" will fly in 2015.

The original Zoo Balloon was damaged beyond repair by weather in February 2014, and replaced by a one-season rental balloon, which will fly through Nov. 23.

"Tremendous public support and heartfelt requests from the community" led the Zoo to seek a new Zoo Balloon, which is set to start flying in Spring 2015. METRO

Firebombing. Soldier for Kaboni Savage gets 40-year sentence

A soldier for convicted drug dealer Kaboni Savage who helped to orchestrate the 2004 firebombing that killed six members of a witness' family, including four children, was sentenced to 40 years in prison on Wednesday, federal prosecutors announced.

Lamont Lewis, 38, pleaded guilty to helping to orchestrate the retaliatory firebombing attack, which Savage ordered from a jail cell while awaiting trial on federal drug trafficking charges.

According to his guilty plea, Savage told Lewis that he was needed to "carry out a favor to him," according to a statement.

Obama to voters after the Congress sweep: 'I hear you'

GOP. The party also won more than half of the 36 governors' races on Tuesday.

President Barack Obama acknowledged on Wednesday that "Republicans had a good night" with sweeping election victories in Congress and said he got a clear message from voters that it was his responsibility to break a Washington gridlock.

Tuesday's elections gave Republicans control of both houses of Congress for the first time since elections in 2006. The new Congress will take office in early January.

"As president, I have a unique responsibility to try and make this town work," the Democratic president said at a White House news conference. "So, to everyone who voted, I want you to know that I hear you."

Republicans seized control of the Senate and captured their biggest majority in the House of Representatives in more than 60 years.

Legalization

DC voters OK legal pot, but hurdles remain

District of Columbia voters have overwhelmingly approved legalizing marijuana, but pot smokers in the U.S. capital still need congressional approval before they can legally light up.

Washington voters passed the initiative, 65 percent to 28 percent on Tuesday, joining Oregon and Alaska in victories that add fuel to the pot legalization movement.

But Congress, which has constitutional oversight of the U.S. capital city, can disapprove a measure within a review period of 30 business days. REUTERS

Elections. Economy probably wasn't the main culprit in losses

America's underperforming economy has been an albatross for President Barack Obama since he took office in 2009 and likely did his Democratic party few favors in midterm elections on Tuesday — but it may not have been the decisive factor.

Hurt by Obama's general unpopularity, Democrats lost control of the Senate while Republicans strengthened their hold over the House of Representatives. The economy may well have become less of an problem than Obama's performance in addressing a broad range of issues.

Amazon tries out taxi deliveries in California

Amazon.com is testing deliveries via taxis in San Francisco and Los Angeles, according to The Wall Street Journal, as the Internet retailer explores alternative modes of delivery to speed up shipments while restraining cost.

Amazon is using the taxi-hailing mobile app Flywheel to ship parcels via licensed cabs, studying the feasibility of using taxi fleets more broadly as a delivery avenue, The Journal cited people familiar with the matter as saying.

The e-commerce company, stung by shipping delays last Christmas blamed on services such as UPS and FedEx, has been exploring various options from regional couriers to its own delivery vehicles. REUTERS

Ray Rice's appeal hearing underway in New York City

Hearing. League security chief Jeffrey Miller and Ravens President Dick Cass are expected to testify.

Suspended Baltimore Ravens football player Ray Rice and his wife, Janay Palmer, arrive for a hearing in New York City. / GETTY IMAGES

A two-day appeal hearing that former Baltimore Ravens running back Ray Rice hopes will result in his immediate reinstatement to the National Football League began Wednesday in midtown Manhattan.

Rice arrived at the hearing at 9:15 a.m. holding hands with his wife, Janay Palmer, the woman he knocked out in a one-punch fight inside an Atlantic City, New Jersey, casino elevator in February.

The altercation triggered widespread criticism of how NFL Commissioner Goodell handles cases of domestic violence and led to the league strengthening its policies against such crimes.

Rice, 27, a six-year NFL veteran, will argue he was sanctioned twice by the league for the same offense.

Goodell, who is expected to testify at the hearing, suspended Rice in July for two games for punching Palmer, his fiancee at the time of the incident.

But in September, when surveillance video surfaced of the knockout from inside the elevator, Goodell suspended Rice indefinitely and the Ravens released him. REUTERS

Rocket crash. Orbital Sciences set to retire suspect motor in explosion

An investigation into the explosion last week of Orbital Sciences' Antares rocket pointed to a likely problem with a turbopump in the booster's main engine, a refurbished Soviet-era motor that Orbital expects to discontinue, the company chief executive said on Wednesday.

The unmanned rocket, which was carrying a cargo ship to the International Space Station for NASA, exploded about 15 seconds after liftoff on Oct. 28, the first of two recent accidents by privately owned U.S. space operators.

To fulfill its contractual obligations to NASA, Orbital Sciences will buy rockets from an unnamed outside source to launch Cygnus cargo ships, as it speeds up plans to incorporate a better, more powerful engine into its Antares rocket, CEO David Thompson told investors and analysts on a conference call. Ancient critter from Madagascar rewrites early mammalian history

There is no doubt scientists had a lot of luck on their side in discovering a critter from the age of dinosaurs that rewrites our understanding of the history of early mammals.

The researchers said on Wednesday that they unearthed in Madagascar the fossil of a remarkable creature resembling a big groundhog that lived about 66 million years ago and, at about 20 pounds, was enormous compared to most other mammals of the Mesozoic Era.

Judging from a wonderfully preserved skull with a bizarre set of features, it was an active plant eater with strong jaws, a keen sense of smell, well-developed hearing and terrific eyesight under low light conditions, they said. REUTERS

Obama seeks $6.2 billion to combat Ebola

President Barack Obama will ask Congress to approve $6.2 billion in new funds this fiscal year to combat Ebola in West Africa and the United States, according to officials familiar with the request.

The money will be designated as "emergency" funds, and thus technically not subject to an equal amount of savings from other programs, according to one congressional aide briefed on the matter.

According to an official at the White House's Office of Management and Budget, the administration wants lawmakers to provide $4.5 billion in funds for immediate response to the deadly disease and another $1.5 billion in contingency money. REUTERS

OMG! The useless smartphone mocks our antisocial addiction

This piece of black, rectangular plastic certainly looks like a smartphone, but unlike your standard digital device, it doesn't make calls, send texts, feature apps and — most importantly for its creator — rob you of time socializing with friends around you. The NoPhone, created by New York-based designer Van Gould, satirizes the everyday obsession of never losing contact with our smartphones. Metro chats with Gould, whose nongadget has raised $18,000 on Kickstarter, over three times its pledged goal.

How did the idea for the NoPhone come about?
We were at a bar one night, and we realized that we were all hanging out with our phones instead of hanging out with each other. That's when we came up with the idea.

So it's a phone that's actually not a phone?
The NoPhone is a technology-free alternative to constant hand-to-phone contact. In other words, it's a piece of plastic in the shape of a smartphone that helps you stay connected with the real world.

And people really want to have this "gadget"?
Some want to give the NoPhone as a holiday gift for their technology-addicted family and friends. Other people want it for themselves to help them disconnect from their devices.

How many people have already ordered the NoPhone?
Nearly a thousand people from around the world have already pledged to our project on Kickstarter. We are now taking pre-orders.

What advantages does it have in comparison to other phones?
When you hold the NoPhone, it feels like a phone and looks like a phone, but it doesn't work like a phone. In fact, it doesn't work at all. The NoPhone's best feature is its lack of features. Sometimes it feels good to have no phone. DMITRY BELYAEV, METRO WORLD NEWS

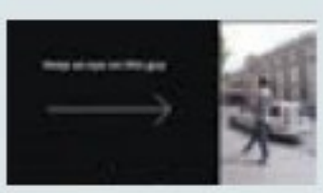
New Zealand tries its own catcalling video

Last week's Hollaback catcalling video has prompted plenty of reactions and debate, so it's understandable that the folks at the New Zealand Herald would want to get in on the action. They sent one woman, Nicola Simpson, out onto the streets of Auckland to see what sort of treatment she'd get, and the results are a little different than the New York version, to put it mildly. "Only two people spoke to the actress, and one of them was asking for directions," the video reports. Your move, Toronto.



1 Britney Spears gambles on Vegas

Hey, you want to go see Britney Spears' show in Vegas? Because there are seats available. Like, a lot of them. Production staff are reportedly "scrambling" to fill seats after online ticket sales suggested that Spears' upcoming performances would be half-empty. "She said that there was no way in hell that she would perform to a half-empty theater," a source tells Radar Online. Among the tactics they've been employing to fill out the space, my favorite has got to be "Britney Day," when anyone who shares the same first name as Spears gets a free ticket.

2 Benedict Cumberbatch quietly announces he's off the market

I'm starting to worry that Benedict Cumberbatch doesn't understand how this whole being famous thing works. In an adorably old-fashioned and totally normal move, the "Sherlock" star announced his engagement to actress Sophie Hunter with a simple announcement in the Forthcoming Marriages section of The Times of London newspaper. "The engagement is announced between Benedict, son of Wanda and Timothy Cumberbatch of London, and Sophie, daughter of Katharine Hunter of Edinburgh and Charles Hunter of London," the posting reads. Very traditional, yes, but come on, Ben. You could've gotten a lot of mileage out of an exclusive like that. Of course, given the hysteria level of a lot of Cumberbatch's female fans, it's understandable he'd want to downplay this. There could still be a riot. Next, he'll announce he's been cast as Doctor Strange on Craigslist.

3 Harry Styles not limited to one direction in choice of mates

What does a girl need to be to win Harry Styles' heart? Not necessarily a girl, as it turns out. During an interview for On Demand Entertainment, alongside fellow One Direction member Liam Payne, Styles got playful. When asked what traits they look for in potential girlfriends, Payne joked, "Female, that's an important trait." Styles quickly argued, "Not that important." So what does he seek in this hypothetical genderless humanoid? A "sense of humor" and "being nice to people."

Jamie Chung vs. Hollywood's Asian problem

JAMIE CHUNG
WIREIMAGE

Interview. The Korean-American actress doesn't think it's a problem if she plays Japanese or Chinese characters.

Jamie Chung has a few things to say about being an Asian-American actress, not least of which is that people shouldn't make a big deal about her playing Japanese or Chinese people when she's Korean. Sure, maybe the promotional tour for Disney's new animated romp, "Big Hero 6," which follows the adventures of a team of techies-turned-superheroes and an inflatable robot, isn't an ideal time for talking about race-based casting and Asian-American representation, but it's a conversation worth having, and one Chung is eager to have.

How often do you get asked about representing Asian-Americans?

I'm Korean; my nationality's Korean. And you know, I get asked [about playing different nationalities] quite often. I really don't see what difference it makes. I'm honored to play these roles, and I know quite a lot about the Japanese culture as well as

Jamie Chung voices hero GoGo Tomago in "Big Hero 6." / DISNEY

Thai culture and Korean culture and Chinese culture, and they are all very different. But it's weird that I get called out on those kinds of questions because it's like, do you call out Australian actors for playing British? "How does it feel playing a white character?" You know what I mean? I just wish it didn't have to be so racially defined. It becomes quite annoying.

Do you ever feel a sense of, "Why am I expected to be a representative?"
I read an interview with Lucy Liu where they asked her, "How does it feel to represent the whole Asian community?" And she's like, "I never asked for that! I'm just doing my job." She doesn't necessarily want that responsibility. And I'm not saying that I don't, it's just … I don't know. I consider myself an artist, and I love and appreciate all these different cultures. It's interesting, and I get it. There's a lot of nationalism and a lot of pride, and I respect that. But as an artist, it's sad that we're kind of limited. We're already so segregated — Asian female actress — it sucks that it's even more limiting if you think like that.

NED EHRBAR
@Nedrick
ned.ehrbar@metro.us

The road forward

Her solution

How do you deal with all of this?
You just answer the questions as PC as possible. As an artist, you hope to play all of them and not just one specific Korean character because you're Korean. I don't think that's really fair. I'm sure white actors are not asked these questions. A great actor is a great actor, and they can turn into something else. But it's quite entertaining when everyone in a movie about Egypt is anything but Egyptian. So I get it, I get it. It's a hard thing to address.

When will we get to see Asian-American arcs on television that aren't just telling the same story?
Yeah, I'm so sick of that story. And it's my story, too. I think once we phase out of this decade, hopefully it will become more even. And I feel like we're getting there, but slowly.

Alexander Wang x H&M: The new urban uniform

Debut. The designer's take on day-to-night dressing includes a stop at the gym.

A quick scan of the crowd gathered for Alexander Wang's exclusive H&M debut reveals the fashion set's new unofficial uniform: sleek black everything and sneakers.

It seems that every editor present ditched her stilettos for October's multi-part extravaganza — a morning press conference downtown, with an evening fashion show way uptown, followed by an after-hours pop-up shop and concert — which is totally fitting.

Wang has championed effortless, off-duty dressing since launching his label in 2004. For Spring 2015, the designer drew inspiration from "the phenomenon of sneaker culture." Now his much-hyped H&M collaboration — hitting stores today! — takes on active wear.

"A lot of my friends are gym fanatics and go to SoulCycle," explains Wang about the starting point for his capsule.

The designer, who has a sixth sense for how trendsetters want to dress, stresses that sporty clothes are no longer relegated to the gym.

"There's a lot of people like me: I'm not an athlete, I don't work out, but I wear gym clothes almost every day," he says while picking at a plate of grapes backstage. Rehearsal for tonight's runway show got pushed back, and so did any chance to eat.

Further proving his point that fitness-inspired fashion is officially a "thing," Beyonce and TopShop recently partnered to produce an athletic label.

"People have such active lifestyles that they want to be comfortable. They want to be able to move and take the subway and run around," says the designer.

If there's anyone who understands our fast-paced lives, full of multitasking and meals on the go, it's Wang. In addition to designing his eponymous multimillion-dollar brand, the 30-year-old was named creative director of Balenciaga in 2012. And somewhere in the mix he managed to create this collection for the Swedish fast-fashion retailer — which, he stressed during the morning press conference, isn't a lower-priced version of his hits. These designs are brand new.

"I always try to push forward and discover a new conversation that I haven't necessarily done before, while staying very true to the approach of ease, the approach of being unpretentious, the approach of being comfortable," he says.

Wang doesn't work out, but he knows the importance of yoga pants. / PROVIDED

Sporty clothing fits the requirements. Specifically, says Wang, "the idea of sports at night." Anyone who's attended a Wang after-party knows that the designer prefers to burn his calories on the dance floor.

Cutout scuba dresses, tech-inspired leggings and quick-drying crop tops work just as well at the club as they would at, say, Equinox.

"I'm not trying to reinvent the wheel," says the designer. "I love fashion; it's fun, and I think it should be celebrated."

An hour later, acrobats stormed the racetrack runway. They jumped and flipped on trampolines before supermodels such as Joan Smalls, Karlie Kloss and a bevy of shirtless men took the floor.

Confetti came down. The "Wang"-embossed sweatshirt sold out early. And like his epic fashion week after-parties, guests danced the night away to a surprise performance. This time, it was Missy Elliott commanding revelers to "Get Ur Freak On."

The smart ones raged in sneakers.

Quoted

"This line is so close to my process and how I live that it felt very authentic to my lifestyle." Wang

When your phone doesn't realize you've broken up

Modern love. An artist explores how technology keeps couples intertwined.

When designer and new media artist Sarah Hallacher broke up with her longtime boyfriend last year, she couldn't help but notice just how connected the former couple's online lives were long after their relationship ended.

"My partner and I lived together, and as [we were] moving out and trying to de-tangle everything, I needed a creative outlet. So I just started taking screenshots," says Hallacher. Those screenshots were the inspiration for Hallacher's latest project "The User Experience of a Heartbreak," a collection of animated GIFs and other images that together tell the story of a modern relationship.

A screenshot from "The User Experience of a Heartbreak" / PROVIDED

We talked to Hallacher about some of the surprising things she learned during her breakup.

Facebook remembers everything

"At some point, [my ex] blocked me on Facebook and he kind of mentioned 'that it's really painful to see any mention of you online,'" Hallacher explains. "When I first noticed he blocked me, I thought, "Does this end our relationship? Are we not friends anymore?"

It turns out that many people were asking the same questions. "I found this massive archive of all of these social media questions," she says. "It was interesting to see that people wanted to know what happened because they were having an emotional reaction to all of these things."

Netflix doesn't recognize you

While Facebook never forgets, it seemed like Netflix and Amazon didn't really know what uncoupled Hallacher was like. "We shared my Netflix account," she notes. "So after we split up, my entire Netflix queue was crazy sci-fi movies he wanted to see."

Hallacher says that she always used her ex-partner's Amazon account to order products and watch shows. "All of my purchase history was on his account," she explains. "When I went on my own Amazon account, it said I hadn't bought anything since 2009."

Tip

Pick your security question carefully

One startling moment came when Hallacher had to call about one of her credit cards. "I probably call my credit card company about once a year, if that, and I totally forgot that I made his name the answer to my security question," she says. "So the operator asks, 'Who is your best friend?' And it's him."

FOR ADULTS WITH TYPE 2 DIABETES
Januvia® works when my blood sugar is HIGH...
...and works less when my blood sugar is LOW.
Actor portrayal.

JANUVIA works by enhancing your body's own ability to lower blood sugar.

- JANUVIA is a prescription pill you take once a day.
- JANUVIA, along with diet and exercise, helps lower blood sugar in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA, by itself, is not likely to cause blood sugar going too low (hypoglycemia), because it works less when blood sugar is low.
- JANUVIA, by itself, is not likely to cause weight gain.

JANUVIA (jah-NEW-vee-ah) should not be used in patients with type 1 diabetes or with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in the blood or urine). If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas), it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting it while taking JANUVIA.

Selected Risk Information About JANUVIA

Serious side effects can happen in people who take JANUVIA, including pancreatitis, which may be severe and lead to death. Before you start taking JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you've ever had pancreatitis. Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

Do not take JANUVIA if you are allergic to any of its ingredients, including sitagliptin. Symptoms of serious allergic reactions to JANUVIA, including rash, hives, and swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty breathing or swallowing, can occur. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away.

Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis, have been reported.

If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include headache, drowsiness, weakness, dizziness, confusion, irritability, hunger, fast heart beat, sweating, and feeling jittery.

Please read the Medication Guide on the adjacent page for more detailed information.

Your doctor may do blood tests before and during treatment with JANUVIA to see how well your kidneys are working. Based on these results, your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA. The most common side effects of JANUVIA are upper respiratory tract infection, stuffy or runny nose and sore throat, and headache.

You are encouraged to report negative side effects of prescription drugs to the FDA. Visit www.fda.gov/medwatch, or call 1-800-FDA-1088.

Pay as little as $5 per prescription.*

Medication Guide

JANUVIA® (jah-NEW-vee-ah) (sitagliptin) Tablets

Read this Medication Guide carefully before you start taking JANUVIA and each time you get a refill. There may be new information. This information does not take the place of talking with your doctor about your medical condition or your treatment. If you have any questions about JANUVIA, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

What is the most important information I should know about JANUVIA?

Serious side effects can happen in people taking JANUVIA, including inflammation of the pancreas (pancreatitis) which may be severe and lead to death.

Certain medical problems make you more likely to get pancreatitis.

Before you start taking JANUVIA:

Tell your doctor if you have ever had

- pancreatitis
- stones in your gallbladder (gallstones)
- a history of alcoholism
- high blood triglyceride levels
- kidney problems

Stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away if you have pain in your stomach area (abdomen) that is severe and will not go away. The pain may be felt going from your abdomen through to your back. The pain may happen with or without vomiting. These may be symptoms of pancreatitis.

What is JANUVIA?

- JANUVIA is a prescription medicine used along with diet and exercise to lower blood sugar in adults with type 2 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not for people with type 1 diabetes.
- JANUVIA is not for people with diabetic ketoacidosis (increased ketones in your blood or urine).
- If you have had pancreatitis (inflammation of the pancreas) in the past, it is not known if you have a higher chance of getting pancreatitis while you take JANUVIA.
- It is not known if JANUVIA is safe and effective when used in children under 18 years of age.

Who should not take JANUVIA?

Do not take JANUVIA if:

- you are allergic to any of the ingredients in JANUVIA. See the end of this Medication Guide for a complete list of ingredients in JANUVIA.

Symptoms of a serious allergic reaction to JANUVIA may include:

- rash
- raised red patches on your skin (hives)
- swelling of the face, lips, tongue, and throat that may cause difficulty in breathing or swallowing

What should I tell my doctor before taking JANUVIA?

Before you take JANUVIA, tell your doctor if you:

- have or have had inflammation of your pancreas (pancreatitis).
- have kidney problems.
- have any other medical conditions.
- are pregnant or plan to become pregnant. It is not known if JANUVIA will harm your unborn baby. If you are pregnant, talk with your doctor about the best way to control your blood sugar while you are pregnant.

  Pregnancy Registry: If you take JANUVIA at any time during your pregnancy, talk with your doctor about how you can join the JANUVIA pregnancy registry. The purpose of this registry is to collect information about the health of you and your baby. You can enroll in this registry by calling 1-800-986-8999.
- are breast-feeding or plan to breast-feed. It is not known if JANUVIA will pass into your breast milk. Talk with your doctor about the best way to feed your baby if you are taking JANUVIA.

Tell your doctor about all the medicines you take, including prescription and non-prescription medicines, vitamins, and herbal supplements.

Know the medicines you take. Keep a list of your medicines and show it to your doctor and pharmacist when you get a new medicine.

How should I take JANUVIA?

- Take JANUVIA 1 time each day exactly as your doctor tells you.
- You can take JANUVIA with or without food.
- Your doctor may do blood tests from time to time to see how well your kidneys are working. Your doctor may change your dose of JANUVIA based on the results of your blood tests.
- Your doctor may tell you to take JANUVIA along with other diabetes medicines. Low blood sugar can happen more often when JANUVIA is taken with certain other diabetes medicines. See "What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?".
- If you miss a dose, take it as soon as you remember. If you do not remember until it is time for your next dose, skip the missed dose and go back to your regular schedule. Do not take two doses of JANUVIA at the same time.
- If you take too much JANUVIA, call your doctor or local Poison Control Center right away.
- When your body is under some types of stress, such as fever, trauma (such as a car accident), infection or surgery, the amount of diabetes medicine that you need may change. Tell your doctor right away if you have any of these conditions and follow your doctor's instructions.
- Check your blood sugar as your doctor tells you to.
- Stay on your prescribed diet and exercise program while taking JANUVIA.
- Talk to your doctor about how to prevent, recognize and manage low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), high blood sugar (hyperglycemia), and problems you have because of your diabetes.
- Your doctor will check your diabetes with regular blood tests, including your blood sugar levels and your hemoglobin A1C.

What are the possible side effects of JANUVIA?

Serious side effects have happened in people taking JANUVIA.

- See "What is the most important information I should know about JANUVIA?".
- Low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). If you take JANUVIA with another medicine that can cause low blood sugar, such as a sulfonylurea or insulin, your risk of getting low blood sugar is higher. The dose of your sulfonylurea medicine or insulin may need to be lowered while you use JANUVIA. Signs and symptoms of low blood sugar may include:
  - headache
  - drowsiness
  - weakness
  - dizziness
  - confusion
  - irritability
  - hunger
  - fast heart beat
  - sweating
  - feeling jittery
- Serious allergic reactions. If you have any symptoms of a serious allergic reaction, stop taking JANUVIA and call your doctor right away. See "Who should not take JANUVIA?". Your doctor may give you a medicine for your allergic reaction and prescribe a different medicine for your diabetes.
- Kidney problems, sometimes requiring dialysis

The most common side effects of JANUVIA include:

- upper respiratory infection
- stuffy or runny nose and sore throat
- headache

JANUVIA may have other side effects, including:

- stomach upset and diarrhea
- swelling of the hands or legs, when JANUVIA is used with rosiglitazone (Avandia®). Rosiglitazone is another type of diabetes medicine.

These are not all the possible side effects of JANUVIA. For more information, ask your doctor or pharmacist.

Tell your doctor if you have any side effect that bothers you, is unusual or does not go away.

Call your doctor for medical advice about side effects. You may report side effects to FDA at 1-800-FDA-1088.

How should I store JANUVIA?

Store JANUVIA at 68°F to 77°F (20°C to 25°C).

Keep JANUVIA and all medicines out of the reach of children.

General information about the use of JANUVIA

Medicines are sometimes prescribed for purposes that are not listed in Medication Guides. Do not use JANUVIA for a condition for which it was not prescribed. Do not give JANUVIA to other people, even if they have the same symptoms you have. It may harm them.

This Medication Guide summarizes the most important information about JANUVIA. If you would like to know more information, talk with your doctor. You can ask your doctor or pharmacist for additional information about JANUVIA that is written for health professionals. For more information, go to www.JANUVIA.com or call 1-800-622-4477.

What are the ingredients in JANUVIA?

Active ingredient: sitagliptin

Inactive ingredients: microcrystalline cellulose, anhydrous dibasic calcium phosphate, croscarmellose sodium, magnesium stearate, and sodium stearyl fumarate. The tablet film coating contains the following inactive ingredients: polyvinyl alcohol, polyethylene glycol, talc, titanium dioxide, red iron oxide, and yellow iron oxide.

What is type 2 diabetes?

Type 2 diabetes is a condition in which your body does not make enough insulin, and the insulin that your body produces does not work as well as it should. Your body can also make too much sugar. When this happens, sugar (glucose) builds up in the blood. This can lead to serious medical problems.

High blood sugar can be lowered by diet and exercise, and by certain medicines when necessary.

This Medication Guide has been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

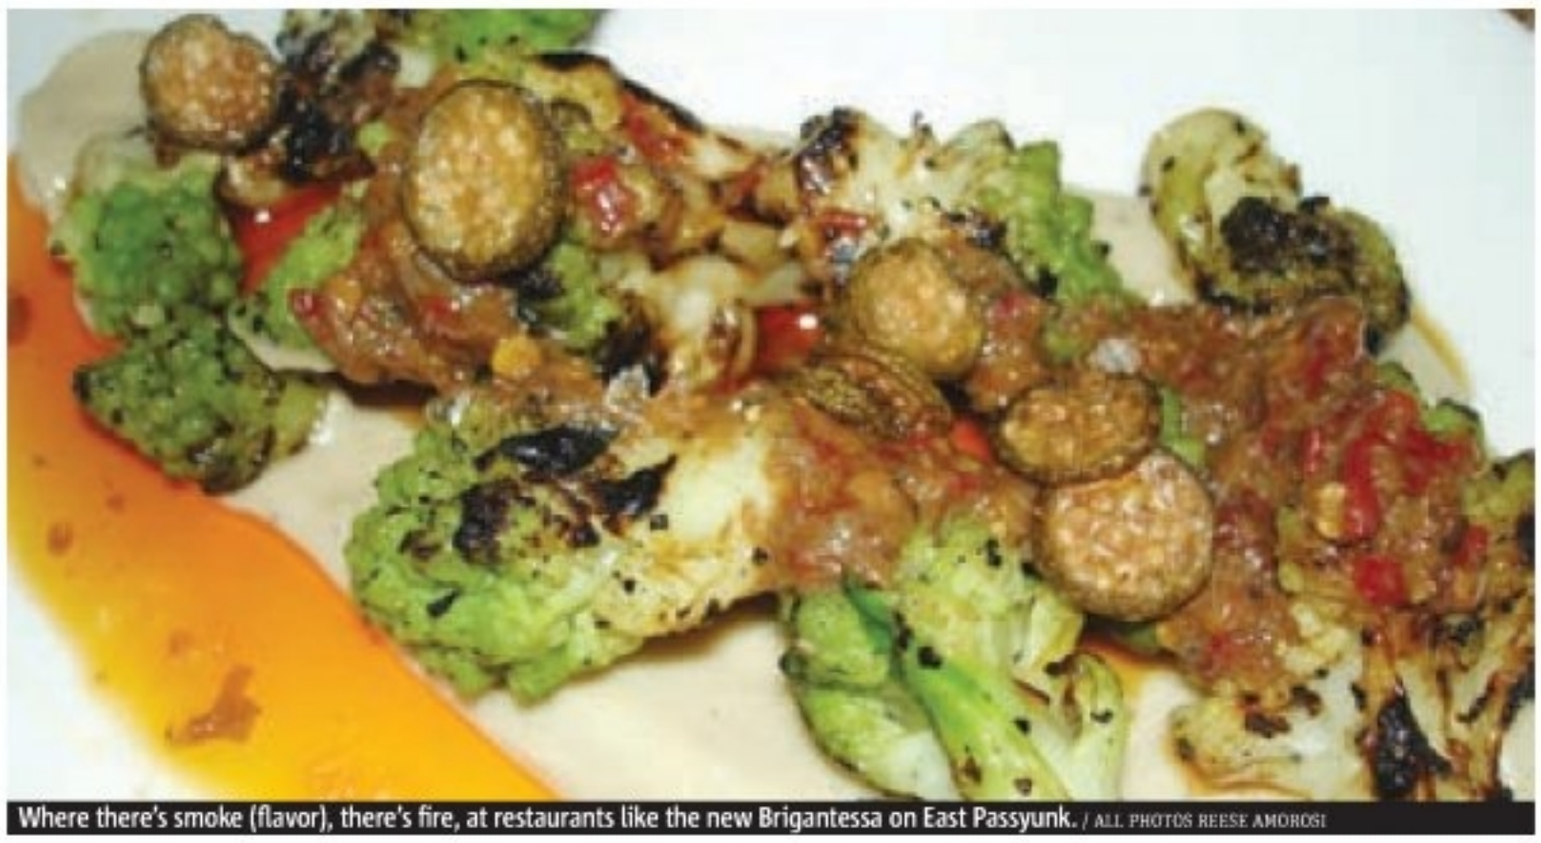
Fire makes a comeback

Food trend.
Brigantessa and Lo Spiedo lead the Italian wood-fire cooking charge.



Where there's smoke (flavor), there's fire, at restaurants like the new Brigantessa on East Passyunk. / ALL PHOTOS REESE AMOROSI

The wood-fire cooking movement particular to Italy, with its various-sized stoves, grills and spits, is trending in Philadelphia. Then again, it's difficult calling something trendy when its been around forever.

"It's the oldest cooking method on the planet," says Joe Cicala, the executive chef/co-owner at the recently opened Brigantessa on East Passyunk Avenue, his second restaurant on the block after Le Virtu.

JOE CICALA

"It's about getting back to basics — the original barbecue," says Scott Calhoun, the executive chef at Lo Spiedo in the Navy Yard, the latest restaurant from Marc Vetri.

Whether it's meat, fish or pizzas slow-roasted in 1,000-degree handmade ovens or fowl and vegetables skewered rotisserie-style, each restaurant creates menus that are elegantly simplistic with their own Italian leanings.

Brigantessa's specialties, such as lamb sirloin with smoked cauliflower, are cooked in an oven crafted by Gianni Acunto; Lo Spiedo's highlights, including chicken with olive oil and lemon, get the rotisserie treatment.

"I wanted to give the food a unique sense of rusticity," says Cicala of Brigantessa's menu items such as its smoky grilled romanesco and the wood-roasted cobia. "That's how they cook in Southern Italy."

The menus

What to eat

There is pizza at Brigantessa, but Cicala is quick to say he wasn't looking to open a pizzeria, despite the delights of his tennis racket–shaped racchetta made with fried eggplant and sheep's milk ricotta.

There are also baked pastas and gratins featured on Brigantessa's menu, done in terra-cotta vessels designed to withstand intense heat, as well as the warm Southern flavors of chilies, citrus and cinnamon.

Chef Cicala's wood-grilled lamb sirloin

At Lo Spiedo, Calhoun says the spice rubs and oils mops, specialties such as grilled sardines and timing (brisket roasted for 10 hours then left to stew in its own juices for eight hours) were influenced by Vetri and restaurant partner Jeff Michaud, who both trained in Northern Italy. There's also a Southern feel to Calhoun's menu — the American South, that is — with items such as barbecued baby carrots with ranch dressing. "If we're doing something on the wood-fire grill, there's an abrupt char," says Calhoun. "If it's on the spit, it's slow-rendering meat like pork shoulders where you get the flavors from the smoke being carried off and the fat from the grille."

Cicala agrees when it comes to wood-fire cooking, fat is key. "It absorbs all the smoke flavors and spices."

'Alton Brown Live!'

Our favorite story about maniacally gleeful "Cutthroat Kitchen" host Alton Brown is that his interest in food really began in college, when he discovered that he could turn a woman's rejection into a "yes" if he offered to cook for them. Think of how else food could change your life! Brown describes his "The Edible Inevitable Tour" as a combination of "science, music, food and a few other things no one in his right mind would allow me to do on TV." Expect antics, singing (by Brown!) and food experiments that turn the first few rows into a splash zone. Somehow, there will also be puppets.

Cooking with the mob

Hot chef. Angelo Lutz's mafia ties come in handy at his Italian eatery in Collingswood.

"I was born and raised in South Philadelphia, and I commute to work every day," Chef Lutz says. "I plan to move to Jersey though. I'll miss Philly, but I won't miss the drive." / PROVIDED

Just over the bridge in Collingswood is an Italian restaurant with strong ties to South Philly's more, ahem, colorful characters. The Kitchen Consigliere is owned and operated by the infamous Angelo Lutz, who, in 2001, was sentenced to nine years in the pen for racketeering, gambling and extortion. (It seems the courts weren't too pleased with his mob connections.) Lutz has used his public image as a cheeky theme for his former YouTube cooking show and then his crowd-funded restaurant, which opened in 2010 and more recently moved to a much bigger space. We caught up with Lutz to learn more about the business.

How are things going at Kitchen Consigliere?
We've been successful. We were in a small location, but then an opportunity to move to a bigger venue came up, just around the corner from where we started. It was a big undertaking and financially, we were in no position to do it. But I thought the risk would be worth the return. It's a roller coaster of good and bad days, but we kept a good client base.

Where did you learn to cook?
I'm a self-taught cook, no training. My mother and her mother were great cooks. It comes naturally, like someone who can sing a tune.

Where do you like to go on your day off?
I'm married to this business – seven days a week, 20 hours a day. So when I go out, I usually want anything that isn't Italian. I will go to [Ristorante] Pesto on South Broad though. My friend Giovanni [Varallo] owns it. He's a mentor to me.

Bonus question

You had a cooking show on YouTube with former Philly .com writer Marnie Hall. Any thoughts on offering cooking classes one day?
I liked working in front of a camera. I have a good personality and I like to exploit it. So if I ever did a class, there has to be some entertaining factor to it. It has to be a show, but you still walk away learning.

MUSEUM

Body Worlds: Animal Inside Out

Through April 12
Franklin Institute
222 N. 20th St.
$8-$30, 215-448-1200,

'Henry V'

Through Nov. 16
Philadelphia Shakespeare Theatre, 2111 Sansom St.; $20-$35, 215-496-8001, www.phillyshakespeare.org
Philadelphia Shakespeare Theatre sets the Bard's history play in a private high school — always a good place for war. Fictionalizing events from the early 1400s, the play features one of the great mic-dropping, rally-the-troops speeches in theater history, which, however imagined the words were, actually did boost morale when Laurence Oliver read them to beleaguered British citizens in World War II.

THEATER

'Mary Poppins'

Through Jan. 4
Walnut Street Theatre
825 Walnut St.
$72-$82, 800-745-3000
www.ticketmaster.com
"Mary Poppins" is so familiar that it's easy to forget how mysterious it is. A magical "nanny" appears out of nowhere to help care for a pair of British siblings, pro bono. But who or what is she, and where did she come from? We never find out. This musical follows the Disney film, with all your favorite songs — and the mystery — intact.

Horoscope

♏ Scorpio | Oct. 23-Nov. 21. Maintain discipline and keep a level head, regardless of what is going on around you. Don't allow a minor dispute to jeopardize your position.

♐ Sagittarius | Nov. 22-Dec. 21. Keep your mind on your tasks. Daydreaming will result in an unfortunate mishap. Reconnect with an old friend.

♑ Capricorn | Dec. 22-Jan. 20. Someone in your life will feel left out if your schedule becomes too hectic. Plan something that will perk you up.

♒ Aquarius | Jan. 21-Feb. 18. Don't invite interference into your life by sharing personal information. You are likely to set yourself up for a fall.

♓ Pisces | Feb. 19-March 20. Your best option is to listen and learn. Avoid making promises that you can't keep. Spend time doing something you love.

♈ Aries | March 21-April 20. Minor ailments will get worse if you don't take better care of your health. Good nutrition, exercise and rest will help fight pending problems.

♉ Taurus | April 21-May 21. Pick your battles wisely. If you receive unsolicited advice from a well-meaning individual, listen carefully.

♊ Gemini | May 22-June 20. Don't make any commitments in writing without obtaining legal advice. Financial ventures will not have the right outcome.

♋ Cancer | June 21-July 22. Don't crowd the people in your life. Being considerate of others will make a huge difference in the way you are treated. Don't meddle unless you want to be avoided.

♌ Leo | July 23-Aug. 22. Negative repercussions will occur if you are too vocal about work-related matters. Keep your opinions to yourself.

♍ Virgo | Aug. 23-Sept. 22. Good fortune surrounds you. Go ahead with changes. Your positive attitude will pay off. Romance is in the stars.

♎ Libra | Sept. 23-Oct. 22. Life won't be as idyllic as you wish. Do your best to ride out the storm by retreating to a quiet place where you can reflect.

Dems have lost staying power

Many registered Democratic Party voters could see through the hypocrisy of their candidates for governor, Senate and House. With one hand, they gladly accepted President Obama's assistance in raising millions in campaign funds. Yet, with the other, these same candidates refused to be seen in public shaking hands with the president and campaigning with him side by side. Worse were those Democrats such as Kentucky's Alison Lundergran Grimes and others who could not even come out of the closet and publicly admit that they voted for President Obama in 2008 and 2012. The Republican candidates' margin of victory could have been different had many Obama supporters — both Democrats and Independents — come out to vote instead of sitting on their hands.

Flyers' Mason plays like ace again in net

NHL. The Flyers hope Tuesday's impressive showing against the Oilers jump-starts Mason.

Steve Mason held court inside the Philadelphia Flyers locker room with reporters for nearly 20 minutes Tuesday night. The goaltender didn't seem to mind chatting with the media.

It didn't hurt that for the first time all season he finally had something positive to say.

After seven starts and nearly a month into the year, Mason earned his first victory of the season, stopping 35 shots in Tuesday's 4-1 victory over the Oilers.

After a slow start, Steve Mason looks like the Flyers' top goalie. / GETTY IMAGES

"It's nice to get a win, definitely," Mason said. "You try to look at the bigger picture when things aren't going well. But it does weigh on you, so it was nice to get that first one."

Mason had 33 victories last year and finished with a 2.50 goals against average and a .917 save percentage — compared to a 3.55 GAA and .887 save percentage thus far in 2014.

The low point of this season was getting pulled after allowing four goals in two periods against the Blackhawks. From there, Mason was a spectator from the bench for the next four games.

While Ray Emery won three straight games, Mason worked on his technique and regaining his confidence. Inserted back into the lineup against the Panthers on Saturday, he stopped 30 shots and looked sharp in a 2-1 loss.

On Tuesday, Mason was dialed in against the Oilers.

"He was lights out," GM Ron Hextall said.

Quoted

"You find a comfort zone. I was able to put in a real solid week with [goalie coach Jeff Reese] and I just really feel good about my game." Mason

5 Eagles midseason quarterback fill-ins

NFL. The Eagles have a rich recent history of backups leading the team to successful results.

Mark Sanchez filling in for an injured Nick Foles Sunday against the Texans wasn't the first time the team has had to rely on a serviceable backup in a pressure situation.

In the past two seasons, Foles himself was thrust into the starting role after Michael Vick couldn't find a way to stay healthy. Injuries happen in football, especially at the exposed quarterback position, and many more are to come for the Eagles franchise.

But, out of the fill-ins, who are the top 5 performers in team history?

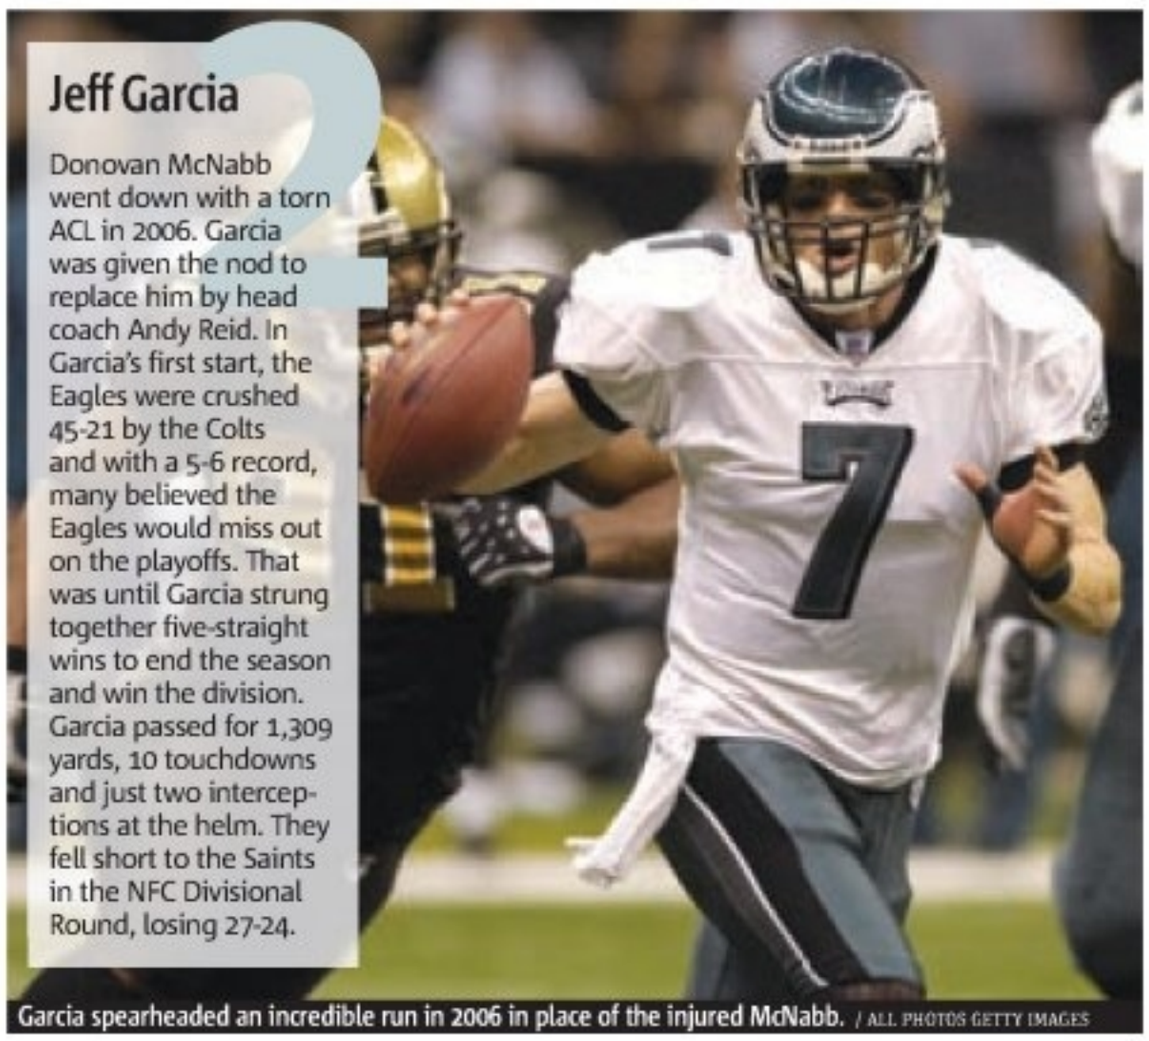
JEFF MCMENAMIN
@Jeff_McMenamin
sports@metro.us

1 Ty Detmer

Things looked bleak for the 1996 Eagles after Rodney Peete went down with a knee injury. In came Detmer, the free-agent understudy of Packer great Brett Favre. Detmer went 4-0 in his first four starts as an Eagle and led the team to the playoffs with a 7-4 record. He passed for 2,911 yards, 15 touchdowns and 13 interceptions in place of Peete. His season ended with a 14-0 loss to Steve Young and the 49ers in the wild-card round, a team he'd join in 1998.

2 Jeff Garcia

Donovan McNabb went down with a torn ACL in 2006. Garcia was given the nod to replace him by head coach Andy Reid. In Garcia's first start, the Eagles were crushed 45-21 by the Colts and with a 5-6 record, many believed the Eagles would miss out on the playoffs. That was until Garcia strung together five-straight wins to end the season and win the division. Garcia passed for 1,309 yards, 10 touchdowns and just two interceptions at the helm. They fell short to the Saints in the NFC Divisional Round, losing 27-24.



Garcia spearheaded an incredible run in 2006 in place of the injured McNabb. / ALL PHOTOS GETTY IMAGES

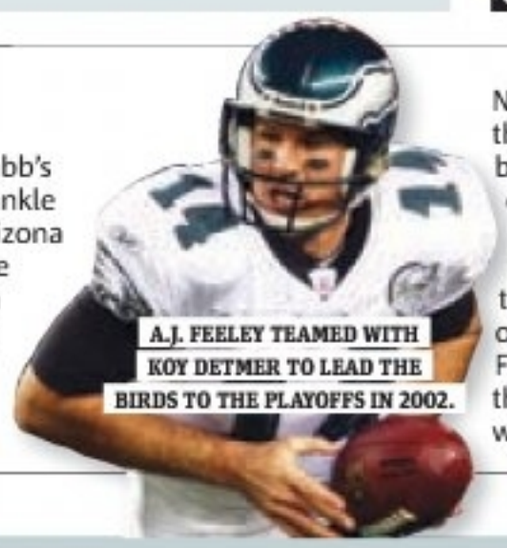
VICK STOLE THE STARTING JOB FROM KEVIN KOLB.

3 Michael Vick

Kevin Kolb was regarded as the team's franchise quarterback in 2010, but was knocked out with a concussion in Week 1. In his place, Vick put up one of the best seasons of his career. He went 8-3 with 3,018 yards passing, 21 touchdowns and six picks while gaining 616 yards on the ground with nine touchdowns. The Eagles would lose to the Packers in the wild-card round.

4 A.J. Feeley

After Donovan McNabb's memorable broken ankle game against the Arizona Cardinals in 2002, the Eagles were left with Koy Detmer and the "whip" against the 7-3 San Francisco 49ers on Monday Night Football. He put the Eagles up 28-10, before dislocating his elbow in the third quarter which paved the way for Feeley to take the field. In place of McNabb and Detmer, Feeley led the Eagles to the playoffs, going 4-1 with 1,011 yards passing, six touchdowns and five interceptions. Yet his most memorable Eagles moment may have come in a loss. In 2007 he filled-in for McNabb against the 10-0 Patriots, throwing for 345 yards and three touchdowns, but three costly interceptions led to a narrow 31-28 loss.



A.J. FEELEY TEAMED WITH KOY DETMER TO LEAD THE BIRDS TO THE PLAYOFFS IN 2002.

5 Mark Sanchez

It's just one game, but Sanchez played admirably in place of Foles on Sunday. He threw for 202 yards, two touchdowns and two interceptions against the Texans, although one of the picks can be attributed to a Josh Huff drop. With Foles out six to eight weeks with a cracked collarbone, expect Sanchez to lead this team into the playoffs. Despite his critics, Sanchez has led the Jets to two AFC Championship games and has shown more mobility in the pocket than Foles throughout his career.

NFL. Eagles prepare for life without Ryans, search for new leadership

Life in the NFL goes on.

This is a mantra the Eagles know all too well, and their latest lesson in the vulnerability of tackle football professionals was a hard one as the Birds lost their defensive leader DeMeco Ryans to a season ending ACL injury Sunday.

But from a depth chart perspective, it's nothing new for the Eagles, who have now seen four inside linebackers miss time due to injuries.

"It'll be similar to when Mychal Kendricks was out," Eagles defensive coordinator Bill Davis said. "The neat part of our inside backers, really within the scheme, is they're kind of interchangeable."

The Eagles have been lucky to have linebackers who can play multiple positions, and with Kendricks healthy, the rest of the inside linebackers will just fall into place.

"We'll have [Emmanuel] Acho and Casey [Matthews] handling first and second-down duties at the DeMeco spot instead of the Mychal spot," Davis said. "They're cross-trained and they'll be fine."

The Eagles will be able to get competent athletes on the field Monday night against the Panthers, but there is one key element they won't be able to replace — Ryan's intangibles.

"You don't replace the leadership," Davis said, "You just don't. Leadership is something that is earned over time. DeMeco has got a lot of pelts on the wall and he's earned it. You saw the reaction from the Houston Texans. He's just that kind of guy."

Ryans is under contract to return to the Birds in 2015. / GETTY IMAGES

Smith in the fold

One silver lining from DeMeco Ryans' brutal injury is the opportunity for first-round draft pick Marcus Smith III to contribute at the inside linebacker position.

- When Smith has played, it's been mostly from the outside position.
- "The inside part is going to grow him," Bill Davis said, "and what we're hoping is that the overall knowledge of the complete linebacker group, not just the outside, will help him grow eventually. But we definitely need him at the inside backer spot."
